

Dear FCC:

I am writing to strongly urge you NOT to alter the FCC's 2003 Report and Order amending the regulations that implement the Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991 (TCPA).

In particular, I urge you not to alter the regulation at 64.1200(a)(3)(i).

If a business wants to use my fax machine to print out their advertisements, then Congress has said they must obtain my permission first. The only way to be sure that this has actually happened is to require prior permission in writing as the FCC has now done explicitly.

Thank you for your help in trying to stem the tide of unsolicited fax advertisements.

Sincerely
Stewart Abramson
